PRETTY ROMANCE

Prominent Man in Boston to Marry a Stenographer.

He Is a Middle Aged Bachelor, and His Bride Is Just Twenty.

Boston, Mass., June 12 .- A pretty romance of State street culminates this evening in the marriage of Roland Worthington and Miss Edith Johnson Mr. Worthington is the son of the late Collector of Customs Roland Worthington. He is one of the well known middle aged club men of Boston, and an enthusiastic horseman, yachtsman and golf devotee. He has always lived me with his mother and sisters, and his engagement was a great surprise to his many friends, as he was supposed to be a confirmed bachelor.

The bride has held the position of public stenographer in the Worthington "sky-somaper" on State street owned by her fiance. She is a strikingly beautiful young woman, and has just turned twenty. It is said by her friends she is bright and accomplished. It was only during the last few months that the attachment was noticed, and then the courtship became plainly evident. It was love which smoldered for a long period. Before a great while the engagement was whispered. The bride has resided in Pondville with her aunt, where they have a pretty little home. The couple will take an extended wedding trip, and on their return will reside in Dedham.

AND NOW WE HAVE PARLOR POLO The Latest Fad of the New York Fash ionable World. The newest fad is parlor polo, and the reader can readily guess its rules as well as its charms. Parlor polo can ing been chosen, each player selects a pony, which is a stick with a horse's head, like the hobby-horse of our childhood. The men straddle the ponies; the women ride side-saddle or as they please. Some of the different colored ponies are considered unlucky and it is the rule to draw for choice. The goals are fixed; the ball is thrown down, and the drivers hit it or at ! with their mallets. The rules of real polo are observed as far as they apply to the restricted space.

You will be surprised at the amount of healthful exercise you can get out of this apparently simple game. There are accidents—the slipping of a rider, the falling of a pony, the hitting of an adversary with a mailet—that add to the interest. The scene is more picturesque when the men wear pole cos-tumes and the women parti-colored pole caps; but this is not required. Indeed, dinner parties are now hur-ried through so that the company may clear away the furniture and play par-ler role as they once played pinglor polo as they once played ping-pong.—New York Town Topics.
